

SEARCHING FOR AUTHENTIC FULFILLMENT

*If at any moment there is a clear signal coming from inside you that indicates that something is missing, that life is much more than emptiness, weight, formality, averageness... know that the meaning of literally your entire life depends on will you answer on that signal or ignore it. Answering it properly, nowadays, may seem like a real challenge, I agree. However, the key question is: what kind of trace do you want to leave with your life – a trace filled with failures, a sense of emptiness, or a trace filled with true, complete realization, which builds on everything that has been created for eons up to this moment, out of true love? You and I both know that we are neither made for half results nor complete failures! That is why it is so worth the effort to follow that signal.

Everything is available to us! Extraordinary possibilities to overcome any difficulty and never experience it again. At the same time, the possibility to shape life, both for ourselves and for the environment, with permanent, positive actions. The most sublime wisdom, truth, love, empathy, tranquility, freedom, creation... it's really a shame, and even stupidity, when we already have all this at our disposal, to go through life with a feeling of torture, and to end it with a feeling of regret. Or even worse, with the experience of defeat of our soul .

However, it is necessary to do what is in our power, to let the available blessings into our life to a much greater extent. It is entirely possible. That's why we met now, to be a wind at each other's backs during that process.